COLLEGE OF WILLIAM & MARY

I. Located in Williamsburg, the pre-Revolutionary capital of Virginia, six miles from ancient Jamestown and twelve miles from historic Yorktown. The town is beautiful and quaint in itself; old-fashioned in its buildings; full of green places with broad spreading trees.

II. Regular academic courses leading to the A. B., B. S. and A. M. degrees. The A. B. degree is the same that has been conferred by the College for more than 200 years, and is the honor which has been won and worn by many of the most illustrious men of America.

III. In addition to the regular academic courses we have a Normal Department designed especially for the training of white male teachers.

IV. The State offers 132 scholarships to students who obligate themselves to teach two years in the public schools.

V. Total expenses per session for tuition, fees, board, room, heat, light, laundry, etc., $186.00. Total expenses to those holding State scholarships, $133.00.

COLLEGES AND SCHOOLS

cludes four acres of grounds (which provide ample space for outdoor sports) and a fine group of connected, steam-heated buildings. The equipment is thorough. Not accommodating more than eighty pupils, there is here a charming, home-like atmosphere, perhaps the most distinctly attractive thing about the place. Stuart Hall belongs to the Episcopal Church of Virginia, and its aim has always been to develop the highest type of refined and capable Christian womanhood.

State Female Normal School.
The State Female Normal School, Farmville, Va., established in 1884, has grown steadily in every direction, the enrollment for the session of 1909-1910 having reached a total of 927.

This institution was established for the sole purpose of teacher-training, to advance and uplift the public school system of Virginia. Some thousand graduates are already in the field, and the past session added over 100 teachers to this force.

The school has never swerved from its original purpose. The needs of the public schools of the State are met in the courses of instruction offered.

Virginia Institute.
Virginia Institute (J. T. Henderson, M. A., president), of Bristol, Va., attracts a great many Southern girls because of its climate. It is located on an eminence 1,800 feet above sea level, commanding a most inspiring view of the mountains. Mississippi furnished thirty-two girls for Virginia Institute in one year. It has students from Maine to Texas, and from the Eastern Shore of Virginia to Oregon. The institution has one of the largest and best equipped plants in all the South. It employs only university and conservatory-trained teachers, and its work is recognized by the best Eastern universities.

Daleville College.
Thoroughness and personal contact with teacher and student have been a special feature of Daleville College. This being an age of commercial activity, the nervous tension of the present day teacher and student is inclined to create too strong a desire for quick returns in college work, the degree conferred in many instances being the highest aim of the student. Our environment of a quiet rural community, of high moral and religious standards, restores the equilibrium to a poise of conservatism. True German accuracy and painstaking thoroughness win every score in the contest of knowledge. This one special feature of our classroom work has won by placing our school on the accredited list by the State Board of Education.

Stonewall Jackson Institute.
Stonewall Jackson Institute, of Abingdon, Va., stands for all that is best in the education of girls and young women. It trains its students not only mentally, but morally and physically. The number of students is limited, and parents can feel confident that the associates of their daughters are such as they themselves desire. An undesirable student cannot remain long at the institute. The limited number of students makes it possible for the president and faculty to come into close personal touch with each student; herein lies partly the reason for the great success of the institute. But the true reason of its success is found in the fact that it is founded upon and teaches the principles of Christ as exemplified in the life of the illustrious general whose name it bears—Stonewall Jackson.

Alderson Academy.
Alderson Academy, of Alderson, W. Va., is a preparatory school of first rank. Coeducational, Baptist control. Fits for entrance to any college or university. Classical, scientific and normal courses. Ideally located in a pure, clean town of 1,800 inhabitants, twenty-five miles west of the famous White Sulphur Springs. Nine successful years; a growing school. The town has just presented an additional thirty-six acres to the campus, and modern buildings will be erected during the year. Exceptional advantages in literature, art, languages, music, elocution and physical training. Talented and experienced teachers.
